Briana Malone, RN, assists Cathy Bolan, RNC, in demonstrating the Luna. The completely wireless simulator provides realistic scenarios following a birth including blue cheeks (as shown), motion, and sounds including coughing, gasping, and crying.

As a Neonatal Resuscitation Program (NRP) Instructor at Prairie Ridge Health (PRH), Cathy Bolan, RNC, is responsible for ensuring that the PRH obstetrics and newborn care team have the knowledge, skills, and training they need to provide resuscitative care for newborns and infants at a moment's notice.

Until now, that training involved a low fidelity manikin, which required the instructor to tell the students the heart rate, whether the manikin was breathing, and other vitals. But in July of 2022, the CAE Luna wireless infant simulator, purchased with funds donated to the PRH Foundation, offered the PRH team what Bolan calls "a game changer."

"The baby coughs, breaths, its cheeks turn blue. It has seizures. It has a heartbeat," she explained. "With just a traditional manikin, the student would wait for me to say what the baby's vitals were or what scenario was happening to the infant. Now, the students actually listen for breathing and heart rate and respond accordingly. The student needs to be 100% aware and at the ready. The student must use their skills, which will reflect the Luna manikin's outcome."

The 8-pound interactive completely wireless manikin offers a complete range of options for training in the care and medical treatment of a neonate in crisis. Luna represents a baby from birth to 28 days after delivery. During training, Bolan uses a wireless handheld tablet to control the Luna's vital signs and create scenarios so students may assess and treat the Luna in a realistic drill. All drills are held in the obstetrics unit so that the emergency supplies and other equipment are at hand as it would be in a real birth.

"The Luna is able to respond to our interventions," said Rachel Svendsen, Women's and Childbirth Services Manager at PRH. "Research says that 10% of babies will require some resuscitation when they are born and 1% will require more extensive resuscitation. Our team has always been trained in newborn resuscitation skills, but the Luna provides us with more realistic training and takes our skills to a new level, so we are even more prepared to care for our smallest patients."

According to Bolan, one of three Luna instructors at PRH, typically two to four healthcare team members train on the Luna as a team. If the care team member is new to NRP, individual training is provided. Bolan, who has been an NRP instructor for the past 7 years, said comments about the Luna from the healthcare team members have been very positive.

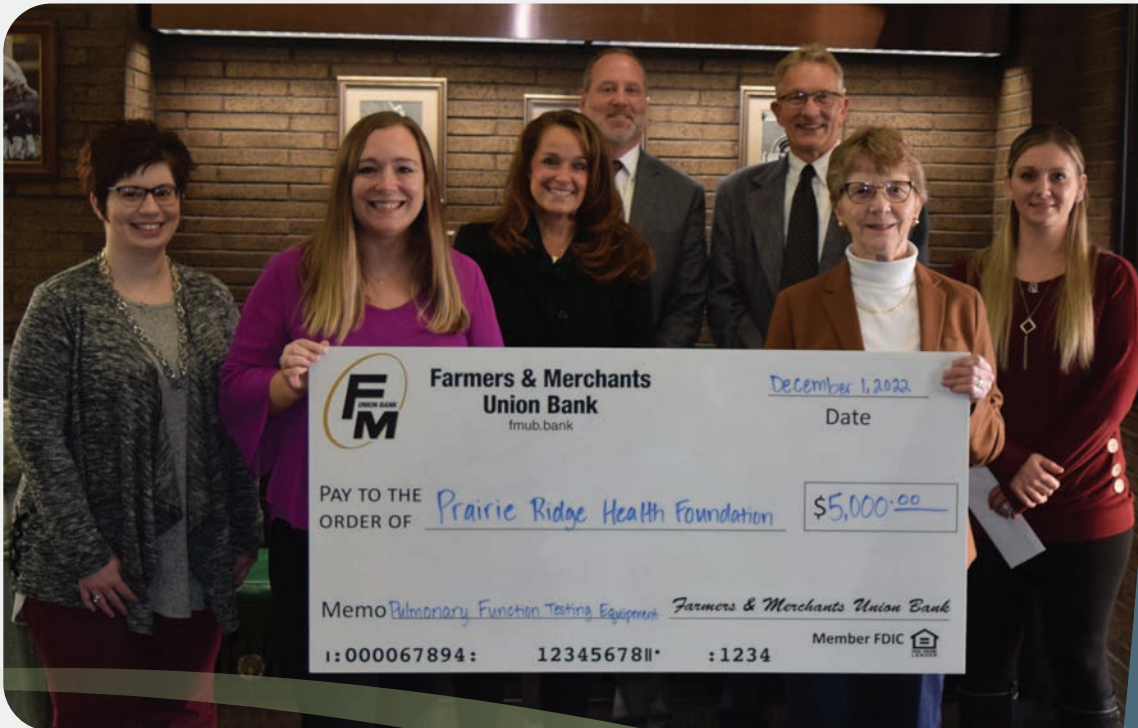

100% of the OB nurses and newborn providers at PRH have trained on the Luna. Bolan continues to lead quarterly drills which include the emergency room care team, house supervisors, and the anesthesia team. NRP certifications must be renewed every two years.

"No other rural facility in our area has a training manikin at this level," said Kristi Line, Executive Director of the PRH Foundation, "and with PRH having a record number of births last year, the Foundation is excited to provide this state-of-the-art training equipment for the team. Thank you to all of our 2022 Toasts and Tastes and Golf Classic participants and private donors who assisted us in raising $35,000 to purchase the Luna, which will help our team save the newest of lives."

PULMONARY FUNCTION TESTING EQUIPMENT

Prairie Ridge Health Foundation plans to spend $52,000 to provide updated Pulmonary Function Testing equipment for our Respiratory Therapy Department. This new equipment will replace our existing testing equipment that is nearing the end of life.

This equipment is used to measure lung function and provide a full respiratory system analysis. This data is used to detect a variety of lung diseases and measure the progress and effectiveness of treatment plans. Additionally, COVID has taken a toll on a lot of people's lungs and long-term effects are still to be seen. The PRH Foundation wants to be a part of ensuring we have the best testing equipment available for the patients we serve.

Thank you to all of our generous donors who have already supported the purchase of this equipment, including the Farmers & Merchants Union Bank of Columbus and the Walmart Distribution Center of Beaver Dam, who made the purchase of this equipment possible.
