A Message

Inspired by gratitude

John Russell
President & CEO

Continuity of care, access to care, and quality of care for our community was our focus in 2022 as we expanded our clinics, providers, and services.

Our Beaver Dam Clinic, now located at 134 Corporate Drive, just off Hwy 151 and Industrial Drive in Beaver Dam, is the home of seven providers with specialties in family medicine, general surgery, obstetrics and gynecology, diabetes education, nutrition therapy, physical and occupational therapy, and orthopedics.

We answered the call from our patients and caregivers for the addition of dermatology, psychiatry, and additional family medicine providers. As a result, we added seven new providers to our Columbus Clinic and one to our Beaver Dam Clinic.

Our education team found new pathways to provide lifesaving training for our own team and others with the addition of the Luna Infant Resuscitation Manikin. We expanded our efforts to provide Basic Life Support and First Aid training to companies in our service area to assist our business community in meeting safety guidelines for their workers.

As 2023 begins, with the knowledge and support of our hospital and foundation boards, we will continue to embark on new opportunities to provide better access to care, providers and services.

For over a century, our healthcare team has been there for our community, and through it all, our community has been there for us.

It is a privilege to care for you and your family.

Educating our community

According to a 2022 report from the American Heart Association, in the United States, someone has a heart attack every 40 seconds. The Occupational Health team at Prairie Ridge Health is back to working with area companies and businesses (after a 12 month hold due to COVID restrictions) to put Basic Life Support (BLS) skills in the hands of workers and give heart episode victims a chance at survival.

“Part of the importance of the training is so the workers know where the first aid supplies and AED (Automatic Electronic Defibrillator) equipment is located in their department or building and review what is in the kit,” said Carina Price, RN, Occupational Health Coordinator, BLS and Heartsaver Instructor.

Onsite group training sessions are held with up to eight individuals in the class per American Heart Association guidelines. Each training takes anywhere from 2 to 4 hours and includes first aid, CPR and AED training.

“The class goes over treating cuts, burns, low blood sugar, and responding to heart attacks and strokes. It includes hands on training, video training and sharing of experiences by others in the class,” explained Price. “Some companies have a first, second and third shift, so we run multiple classes for them and mold it to whatever they prefer, focusing on the topics that are pertinent to their business or company.”

In the summer of 2021, when COVID restrictions began to lift, Price and her fellow instructor, Faith Porter, Occupational Health RN, BLS and Heartsaver Instructor, went back to training onsite in the businesses. “For many of these companies, they had no outsiders in their buildings for a year,” explained Porter.

“In the spring of 2022, we taught a Heartsaver CPR, First Aid and AED course at a local company,” said Porter. “Two days after we were there, a man goes down at work. CPR with AED was initiated by his coworkers and when he got to our ER, he was alert, talking and neurologically intact. He went to the cath lab by helicopter and is living a full life today.”

“You do not see that very often,” said Porter, who in addition to being an instructor has worked in the ER at PRH for over 10 years. “Usually by the time we see them (a cardiac episode victim) in the ER, they have been down for a long time and the outcome is not good. The outcome was good in this case, because those lifesaving measures that we taught in that class were initiated immediately. It was rewarding to see.”

Carina Price, RN
Occupational Health Coordinator

“These first moments are crucial and that’s our goal; to get people to act sooner and not be intimidated about performing CPR or using an AED,” said Price. “The priority when someone has a heart incident is for someone to get on the chest right away, do compressions and get help. We teach them to act versus doing nothing.”

Porter stresses that the training is something everyone should have regardless of their age. “In the time during COVID it was a trying time for healthcare workers, and it goes back to why we do what we do and we made a difference,” she said. “Your employees are a team and a family. How would you feel if this was your family member? You would want someone to respond, to react, to initiate those lifesaving measures.”

In his 19 years of teaching CPR, Chris DeLapp, Education Manager at PRH, has trained over 1,000 individuals. In addition, he has trained and coordinated the certification of 11 trainers that provide instruction to community members, healthcare workers, and onsite at area companies.

During COVID, DeLapp had to come up with other methods to teach CPR to healthcare workers so that certifications were kept up to date. “We did cyber classes, utilizing cameras, smart phones and substituting manikins with a couch pillow. Training didn’t stop, the delivery method was altered,” he explained. “We improvised, we adapted, we overcame.”

DeLapp said that there are common reasons for laypersons to not want to perform CPR on a stranger. “They don’t want to hurt the victim, lack of self-confidence, they don’t know if they can do it in a real situation,” he said. “It’s our job as instructors to change their mindset, teach them that they are there to provide an opportunity for the victim to survive and that if they do nothing the survival rate is 0%.”

Business leaders may contact the Occupational Health Department for training and other occupational health services. Community members may contact Chris DeLapp by email, phone or online to schedule an individual class or group session. CPR and AED is also taught in the SafeSitter program, in which DeLapp and his instructors have trained over 700 SafeSitters.

“It’s a privilege to work with our community and our businesses to prepare them and give them the knowledge, skills and confidence they need to respond,” added DeLapp.

Introducing

Family Medicine

Megan Bartz, MD is a Family Medicine physician who joined the Prairie Ridge Health Columbus Clinic in Fall 2022.

Dr. Bartz received a Bachelor of Arts at the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse. She earned her MD at the University of Wisconsin-Madison and completed her family medicine residency with the University of Wisconsin Department of Family Medicine and Community Health. She also completed an Integrative Medicine Fellowship. She is board certified through the American Board of Family Medicine.

Originally from Eau Claire, WI, she grew up around healthcare. Her mother is an occupational therapist, one sister is a speech therapist, and the other an athletic trainer. During high school, she volunteered at local hospitals, then in college volunteered for a hospice. It was there that she saw the human side of medicine.

“Hospice is what led me toward integrative medicine, focusing on the whole person and the whole health,” she said. “What a person’s spirit feels like. The mind, body, emotions and finding ways to support that.”

Dr. Bartz prefers family medicine because she is able to provide longitudinal care and foster strong relationships with patients. She appreciates the ability to care for the whole person and to help her patients along their own health journeys.

In her free time, Dr. Bartz enjoys time with her family, her three dogs, cooking, traveling, practicing mindfulness, and yoga.

Family Medicine

Elize Malzer, MD is a Family Medicine physician who joined the Prairie Ridge Health Columbus Clinic in Fall 2022. She received a Bachelor of Arts at the University of Pennsylvania and completed a post-baccalaureate certificate program from the Graham School of Continuing Liberal and Professional Studies in Chicago.

Dr. Malzer earned her MD at the University of Wisconsin-Madison and completed her family medicine residency with the University of Wisconsin Department of Family Medicine and Community Health. She is board certified through the American Board of Family Medicine.

Megan Bartz, MD
Family Medicine

Originally from the Midwest, Dr. Malzer said that she grew up around medicine, with her father being a psychologist in a family medicine practice. She said that at first when deciding on a specialty, she wasn't attracted to family medicine, but that soon changed.

"Part of the reason I love family medicine is because you get to do everything. I love to take care of patients in the hospital. It's such a privilege taking care of people when they are feeling their worst. Then you have the opportunity to see them in the clinic when things are going well. I really like that aspect of it. I like to do a little of everything. That continues to keep me interested."

Dr. Malzer also provides health care for members of the transgender community. "The clinic I trained at did a lot of transgender health care. One of the areas of training I took on was transgender healthcare for adults." The specialized training included Gender Affirming Hormone Therapy to help a body's hormones to align with the person's gender identity.

"This is not something offered everywhere. During my training, I would see patients that would drive two hours to receive care in this field. Typically, you see this type of care offered in an urban area at a larger facility. This is unique for a hospital in a rural community to offer this care."

Dr. Malzer says she has had a wonderful welcome to the community. "Clearly this hospital and the clinics are growing. We continue to expand, but continue to maintain the community hospital feel. There's so much benefit in knowing your patient, your community, and their needs. I'm glad those are the priorities here."

In her free time, Dr. Malzer enjoys spending time with her family, outdoors, hiking, fly fishing in Montana and Wyoming, playing volleyball and ultimate frisbee, board games, cooking and baking.

Family Nurse Practitioner

Elizabeth (Jodie) Perkins, APNP, FNP is a family medicine provider who joined the Prairie Ridge Columbus Clinic in Fall 2022. She completed her bachelor's degree from Herzing University and master's degree in nursing from Chamberlain University in Illinois. Jodie is certified in Family Practice with the American Association of Nurse Practitioners.

Introducing

our new Medical Staff members

In high school she decided to take a Certified Nursing Assistant (CNA) course offered by a nursing home in Waupun. She worked at several local nursing homes before going to Madison College to become a Licensed Practical Nurse (LPN).

In 2012 Jodie moved to Columbus and began working as an LPN at Columbus Community Hospital. She worked on both the medical/surgical and obstetrics floors. In 2015, Jodie went back to school to become a Registered Nurse (RN).

She decided to continue with her education and completed a Nurse Practitioner (NP) program at Chamberlain University. "I wanted to be able to do it myself, which is really what made me jump from LPN to RN. I wanted to be able to continue to help the patient. Now as an NP, I can help my patients even more."

Over the years, Jodie has seen tremendous growth and change at Prairie Ridge Health. "I know people when they come through the door. I've seen them give birth, have surgery, and taken care of them as an inpatient. I feel like I have an investment in the community. I wanted to see this hospital continue to grow. I like seeing how well people are taken care of here."

Family Medicine with Obstetrics

Colin Millar, MD is a family medicine with obstetrics physician who joined the Prairie Ridge Health Columbus and Beaver Dam Clinics in Fall 2022. He received a Bachelor of Science at the University of Pennsylvania and earned his MD at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Dr. Millar grew up in the Milwaukee area and completed his residency at the University of Wisconsin Department of Family Medicine and Community Health. He is board certified through the American Board of Family Medicine.

He went to school to study bioengineering, eventually shifting to medicine and completed his residency in Family Medicine at Waukesha Memorial Hospital, which he says prepared him very well. While at Waukesha Memorial, Dr. Millar experienced the COVID-19 pandemic and the Waukesha Holiday Parade tragedy, saying that both of these events showed him the importance of “helping each other.”

“COVID prepared you to know how much you can handle and to be flexible, to brainstorm new ideas, to not be your own silo,” he explained. “We saw lots of people on vents, rationing of care, and I scrubbed in to the first c-section case during COVID.”

Dr. Millar says that he has always been interested in rural medicine. “I want to do everything, and the best place to do that is in a rural setting.” Dr. Millar enjoys working with patients from birth to childhood and throughout adulthood. “It’s really special when you get to deliver a baby, watch them grow up, and continue to take care of them. It’s rewarding to see a new family start.”

Dr. Millar played violin until high school and then taught himself the guitar and ukulele. In his free time, he likes to cook and try new foods. He loves fixing electronics, working on computers, biking and trying new things.

Dermatology

Elizabeth Zeeck, MD is a dermatologist who joined the Prairie Ridge Health Columbus Clinic in Fall 2022. Dr. Zeeck received a Bachelor of Arts at the University of Puget Sound in Tacoma, Washington and completed medical school and an internship in internal medicine at the University of Washington School of Medicine in Seattle. She completed a residency in dermatology, where she was chief resident, at the University of Vermont. She is board certified through the American Academy of Dermatology.

Dr. Zeeck grew up in Billings, Montana. In middle school, she saw a movie about doctors that peaked her interest in pursuing the profession. Toward the third year of medical school, she decided what specialty she wanted to pursue. She really liked Family Medicine, as well as Surgery, and Dermatology seemed like a nice mix of the two.

Dr. Zeeck enjoys being a generalist, where she can see patients of all ages. “Dermatology requires a lot of problem-solving and investigation. I enjoy the continuity of care, getting to know my patients and having conversations about their lives. From treating eczema and rashes on infants to skin cancer excisions on adults, there are no age limits. My oldest patient was 100 years old.”

When asked about her favorite aspect of being a dermatologist, she said “I really like procedures, as they give me another chance to learn about the patient. I like the problem-solving aspect of the specialty. Sometimes we can diagnose things by just reading the chart. If there is anything we can’t do here in the clinic treatment room, we send them to our surgeons or to an area specialist.”

Dr. Zeeck met her husband, Dr. Sean Ackerman in medical school. They moved to the Madison area to be closer to family. In her free time, Dr. Zeeck loves to be outdoors, visit Montana, exercise, read and spend time with her family, including her dog.

Psychiatry

Carolyn Reabe, MD is a psychiatrist who joined the Prairie Ridge Columbus Clinic in Fall, 2022. Dr. Reabe, who sees adults ages 18 and up, received a Bachelor of Arts at the University of Wisconsin in Madison. She completed medical school at the University of Oklahoma College of Medicine. She completed a psychiatry residency at the University of Oklahoma in Tulsa. She is board certified through the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology.

Dr. Reabe knew she wanted to be a doctor at a very young age and dedicated herself to making that dream come true. In college she couldn't get into a chemistry class and chose to take a Russian Language course for fun. She ended up loving it and double majoring in Russian Language and Literature and Pre-Medicine.

During medical school she really liked the behavioral medicine courses and rotations. "I did not like the surgery rotation, so that knocked out a whole lot of options for me. I would much rather talk to people and hear about their life."

In her psychiatry residency she realized she wanted to work with adults. She worked in both inpatient and outpatient settings. "In outpatient care, I've gotten to have long-term relationships with my patients. For some patients I have seen them every 3 to 6 months for the past 14 years. I know their life story and now the rest of their life story. I get to see people get better, get married, have children, grow old with their spouse, go back to work. I enjoy the continuity of care with the patient."

On joining the Prairie Ridge Health team, she says, "It's unique to have a small town that has two psychiatrists. It's a blessing for Columbus to have two psychiatrists who are ready to take care of the community."

In her free time, Dr. Reabe enjoys exercising (she was a yoga instructor for five years), travel, the outdoors, water sports and spending time with her family.

Psychiatry

Sean Ackerman, MD is a psychiatrist who joined the Prairie Ridge Health Columbus Clinic in Winter 2022. Dr. Ackerman, who sees children and young adults ages 5 to 22, received a Bachelor of Fine Arts at New York University and completed medical school at the University of Washington School of Medicine in Seattle. He completed a psychiatry residency and fellowship at the University of Vermont in Burlington and is board certified through the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology.

Dr. Ackerman originally wanted to pursue a career in film. “I went to film school but soon after realized I did not want to spend my life in the film industry. I was making independent films and had a job as a one-to-one aid with a boy who had autism.

“It changed the way I saw the world. I was inspired by him. I spent a year at the Washington Autism Center. It seemed like it was the psychiatrists that had a role in Autism care that made the most impact.”

Dr. Ackerman worked in both an inpatient and outpatient setting before coming to Prairie Ridge Health, where he specializes in child psychiatry. “It is uplifting to do this type of work, because most of the time people get better. It’s a privilege to be able to sit with people during a time that is one of their most difficult times of their life, and for them to trust you and be open with you. It’s wonderful to get to know them because in this setting, they give you their true self, which is incredible.”

Dr. Ackerman’s approach to psychiatry is based on the Vermont Family Based Approach, which emphasizes health and positive lifestyle changes. “Children are deeply affected by their environment. You need to do your best to change their lives and the environment around them. While medications are sometimes helpful, they are not everything. Exercise, sleep, screen time, mental health, community involvement and school all play a role in improving emotional and behavioral health.”

Dr. Ackerman met his wife, Dr. Elizabeth Zeeck in medical school. They moved to the Madison area to be closer to family. In his free time, he enjoys spending time outside with his family and watching movies.

Investing

in a healthy future

Prairie Ridge Health, Inc. experienced continued growth in volumes and revenue in 2022. We saw this growth particularly in our emergency room, urgent care, clinic and related ancillary outpatient departments, such as imaging and lab, over the course of the year. Total Net Revenues not only exceeded budget by 13.0% but also exceeded the prior year by 11.5%. Expenses grew in 2022, but not at the rate of our volumes, ending the year (2.6%) over budget. This led to a positive operating margin, or operating gain, of 13.9% for the fiscal year.

We are extremely grateful to have had such a positive margin in this time of economic uncertainty, rising costs due to inflation, and relatively capped reimbursement from many of our payers. Our sustained ability to achieve positive financial results has led to maintaining our strong financial position and balance sheet. Because of this, we are able to continue to invest in the health of the communities we serve. In 2022, we opened the new expanded clinic building in Beaver Dam which was a $5.3M investment, including the building and equipment, for additional capacity to meet the healthcare needs of Beaver Dam and the surrounding area. We are currently remodeling space on our hospital campus for a dedicated space for both our Infusion and Occupational Health services at an estimated cost of approximately $700,000. With the additional primary care providers, we plan to build out the shelled second floor space of our clinic office building in 2023, an investment of approximately $2M. We also plan to provide further access to health-care in Sun Prairie by building a clinic practice there in the coming year. This project is estimated to cost approximately $20M in future years. In addition, we continually invest in our infrastructure including $1.9M for routine capital expenditures to replace and update hospital equipment. In addition, we will be implementing our Master Campus Plan which would include the relocation of the utility yard for future facility growth and reconfiguring the parking and entry off of Park Avenue for our Main Entrance at an estimated cost of $5M in future years. We also continue to invest in our team by adding 8.6% to our overall workforce in 2022 to meet the demand of growing patient volumes.

Reflecting on this year of sustained growth for Prairie Ridge Health, we remain thankful for your support and partnership. We are grateful you've entrusted us with the stewardship of our resources to continue living out our mission: By building caring relationships with those we serve, we guide the journey to health and wellness.

Throughout the past year, the Prairie Ridge Health Foundation has worked to grow its general endowment to provide for future community needs. An endowment allows a donor to leave a lasting legacy. In support of this endeavor, the PRH Foundation has established a planned giving program. In the next year the PRH Foundation will grow its connection to the communities it serves by continuing to generate funds for the programs and services you and your family need, right here, close to home.
